FOR FIRST GENERATION COLLEGE STUDENTS

LEADERS LEARNING IN COMMUNITIES FOR SUCCESS

The Leaders Learning in Communities for Success (LinCs) program provides resources and services that will improve persistence, academic outcomes and levels of engagement for first generation students as they transition and matriculate during their first year of college.

Through a structured learning community model, enrolled students participate in a number of activities that will strengthen their connection to the university, become actively involved in and out the classroom, as well as build relationships that will assist with transitional barriers from high school to college.

LinCs provides an “anytime, anywhere” learning experience that will give them first hand access to support services and assistance.

LINCS PARTICIPANTS

Students who participate in the Leaders Learning in Communities for Success program must meet the following criteria's:

- First generation students who are entering college as a first time freshman (from high school to college).
- Have the desire to learn the skills to become a leader for the world.
- Have the courage to not only be the first in their family to attend college, but to be the first to graduate from college.

LINCS GOALS

- Assist students with transitioning from high school to college.
- Develop and prepare leaders to become visionaries for their community and global society.
- Provide a learning environment and network of support services that promotes educational and career opportunities.
- Help students to become more independent, self-confident, and proficient learners.
- Increase student engagement with their professors in and out the classroom.
- Improve first generation students persistence and degree completion.

WHAT ARE LEARNING COMMUNITIES?
